Jeff: Hi. Here is my serious answer: It is a stupid red herring which keeps courageous people busy discussing it ad nauseum so that they can spare themselves the real burden of discussing the first-cause prime-mover which created it; while it is simply the duct-tape for the un-courageous Western hypocrites pretending to be intellectuals and scholars; and merely the bull-horn for the Zionist. That pretty much covers it. The latter two is your thesis - but in my vernacular. The first one is my contribution. And that is the only heart of the matter.

For almost every name that you have mentioned in your article, including your own I might add, I remain un-aware that either you or they have ever actually mentioned the word "Rothschild" in public.

So never mind attempting to forensically deconstruct how the House of Rothschilds' infinite wealth acquired through the debt-trap of international lending and currency issue for over 200 years, primarily to wage wars by funding all sides of the conflicts, fuels its bastard brainchild of Zionistan while its attendant vulgar bulldogs spanning the gamut of power projections from AIPAC to "Anti-Semitism" merely keep barking for the benefit of the goy and the odd judenrat.

I remain puzzled, for none of this is classified state-secret. Yet all contend on variously commenting on the bulldogs, while Chomsky even denies that AIPAC is any different from say an ordinary house poodle, and no one comments on their owners. Do you think that is strange? Care to examine that question in your next article?

Regards,
Zahir.

Thanks. Great comment. Would you mind posting it on the Criminal State site. And, yes, I'll go at the issues you raise in due course, including the Rothschild connection....

Jeff
